

LEADERSHIP BENCHMARKS

Dr. Samuel R. Chand

A leader is a servant who takes the initiative to serve and serve well. We all have different roles, but roles have nothing to do with importance.

1. A leader has a passion to keep learning and improving. They are dissatisfied with the status quo and have a passion to improve and grow. Leaders always raise the bar of excellence otherwise they will never reach potential.
2. A leader is someone who can spot potential in others. Believe the best of people.
3. A leader is someone who can dream or envision what can be accomplished.
4. A leader is not easily defeated.
5. A leader has the ability to act – they don't just sit there.
6. A leader takes risks.
7. A leader has the ability to bond with people and mobilize them toward a common purpose.
8. A leader stewards their authority well – to build up and not tear down.
9. A leader is resilient and has an ability to bounce back from defeat and setbacks.
10. A leader is compelled by a passion – "...whatever it takes..." because the WHY behind it is bigger than the WHAT I have to deal with.
